BODY

The Infographic Book of Us

Steve Parker & Andrew Baker

The human body contains 206 bones, is irrigated by 100,000 km of blood vessels, produces 25 million new cells each second, and is made up of many trillions of atoms that were created during the Big Bang 13.7 billion years ago. It is an unceasing source of wonder, we carry it around with us until the day we die, and yet most of us know surprisingly little about it.

This revelatory illustrated guide to the human anatomy will illustrate everything from the brain's most complex synaptic processes through to what our carcasses could make if rendered down into constituents (matches, coal, gold and more). Containing a range of extraordinary infographics, it will show what makes humans unique and different from one another – why some are faster, stronger, are susceptible to disease, or have red hair – as well as meticulously demonstrating how our own bodies change over time.
